

Crissy Visits Steve in Massachusetts

When I arrived everyone was so excited! Velvet wanted to jump inside the box and see all the cool stuff that I had received from all her other hosts!

....after all the excitement had died down, and I finally got to introduce myself to her. Velvet & I settled in to do some girl bonding, of course, Steve wasn't sure what girl bonding was, so he decided it best to go and make dinner.

I wanted to help, but Velvet was so excited to see me, and she wanted to show me her journal that she had been keeping.... The next day after a good night's sleep Steve gave me a tour of the house.

He showed me the seedlings that he had started the day that he knew I was coming to visit....

Steve was excited and he told me that we will be planting them over the weekend...

During the next week, I stayed home to hang out with all the other girls. Steve wanted to be sure that he could take me with him to work and get some pictures, but due to security, no cameras are allowed inside the courthouse anymore....so he decided to make it up me the next weekend.

Steve had classes in the evening during the week, so he asked me if I knew anything about Excel, and of course I do! Steve said what a help I am...

The weekend arrived and Steve was very excited to take me to the Famous Boston Swan Boats. The lady there was quite tickled to see a grown man with Crissy...so she let us on for free!

We fed the ducks and there were quite a few "I had that doll when I was a kid" from a lot of the mommies there with their kids...it was interesting....

After the Swan Boats, we sat on the grass at the Frog Pond and just relaxed and people watched, a few stopped by asking some questions, as you do not see a grown man with someone like me (Steve said that it got tiresome). But he told them that I had been all over the place traveling since 2005, sort of like a Goodwill tour.

After a while we headed back, wandered down Newbury Street with all the expensive shops and all the outdoor peddlers...we got back home and fell out tired. Sunday we laid low and Steve took me to see The Mother Church (Christian Scientist /Mary Baker Eddy). It is quite the sight.

On the 4th of July, Steve and I were invited to his friend Jen's house for a cookout and to watch the fireworks. Jen snapped some pics.

Steve hasn't gotten them yet...it was a late night and he had to work the next day, but we all had fun, and everyone loved me!

I really had a great time getting to know Steve and I really thank him from letting me spend the 4th of July with him and his friends!
